SPREADING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE.

Varieties.

—Charter election to-morrow. Prepare your ballots.

—It is thought the Legislature will not adjourn before the 9th of April.

—Radishes and lettuce, the first of the season, at H. M. Hall's, Diamond street.

—Arthur Oulien, Esq., of Meadville, has been nominated as the Republican candidate for Mayor of that city.

—Fourteen rats passed down the creek from Hydclova yesterday, and twenty-five ratsmen stepped in and died at Goodwin's restaurant.

—A special meeting of the School Directors will be held this evening. A full attendance is requested, and promptly at 7 1/2 o'clock.

—A one hundred barrel well has been obtained on the Jason Farm, situated one and a half miles from Triumph City. It is on new territory, and promises to stimulate developments there.

—The new well on the Ostrack Lease, on Bull Run, which was reported to be producing about fifty barrels per day, is not producing over five barrels per day.

—The corrected returns from New Hampshire report the majority for Bartleson 2,550. The House of Representatives stand 192 Republicans and 138 Democrats.

—A company has been organized in Douglas township, Montgomery county, to commence mining for copper ore early in the spring, on the farm of M. H. and J. H. Brendlinger.

—The cold weather of yesterday acted as a check on the rise in Oil Creek, and lumbermen are preparing their rafts in order to move them down stream as soon as the water commences to fall.

—Four hundred and thirty applications for liquor licenses for hotels, eating houses, etc., in Schuylkill county, have been filed with the Clerk of the Sessions. Fifty-nine of these applicants are of Potsville.

—The freshest on the Allegheny had a very damaging effect in Tidewater on Tuesday. The railroad track was submerged over two feet, and there were extensive land slides both above and below the town, which completely blocked the road. All trains were abandoned.

—The oil men of West Virginia have appointed the following gentlemen to visit Washington for the purpose of laying before the Committee of Ways and Means the interests of West Virginia, in regard to petroleum: Col. Henry W. Held, Major Sterling, H. P. Longmoore, Esq., J. N. Camden, Esq., Judge Jackson, Edward Bredon, Esq., and J. M. Jackson, Esq.

—That portion of the delivery pipe from the Church Run Pipe Company's tanks on the south side of the Creek to the railroad track, which was carried away by the freshet, has been repaired and is now in operation. The pipe has been attached to a cable that is swung across the Creek, a few feet above the water.

—There is a report in circulation on the Creek to the effect that the Benninghoff Farm has been purchased in fee, by Mr. Newton and two of Mr. Benninghoff's sons, for $60,000. The farm is now producing about five hundred barrels per day, and there are four or five new wells going down, on different parts of it. There are several acres of the farm situated between Western Run and the Upper McElroy Farm through which the oil has been accurately traced, that have not been developed.

The Majority.

The Republican candidate for Mayor, Justice Bates, will, if elected, be the right man in the right place, and so well satisfied were the Democrats of this fact, that when he was talked of as a people's candidate, irrespective of party, our opponents were enthusiastically in favor of his nomination. We said "if elected," not meaning, however, to imply that there is any doubt of that event. The Republican majority in Titusville, ranges from 75 to 100, the former being the majority at the last general election, on a strict party vote. Mr. Bates, we believe, will receive a great many Democratic votes. He holds the office of Justice of the Peace, and can discharge the judicial duties of Mayor without inconvenience. Moreover, as a no-party legislator, he will be acceptable to both parties, and he will not be asked to use the influence of his position for mere partisan objects.

The Democrats have nominated Mr. Henry Hinkley, more as a matter of form, than with any serious expectation of defeating Mr. Bates. Mr. H. was nominated without solicitation on his own part and indeed against his wishes. He has considerable personal popularity and under other circumstances would make a good run. But he does not want the position, has no time to devote to it, and would rather remain plain "Dennis" Hinkley, the referee, than have all the official titles that can be conferred. And we hope his wishes will be gratified.

The Election To-Morrow.

If the Republicans of Titusville intend to make any effort toward achieving a political victory at the Charter election, the work must be done to-day. The Democrats have put their best men in nomination, and are laboring energetically for their success. Hereafter no political issue has been made in our local elections, the candidates for office being selected from both parties. This year both parties have made nominations, and as the Republicans have a decided majority in three of the wards, and have nominated unexceptionable candidates for office, we cannot doubt their success. One of the resolutions adopted by the City Convention is worth repeating in this connection:

Resolved, That the Republican nominations in the several wards of Titusville merit and should receive the united support of the party, for they are in every instance honest and capable men, worthy of official distinction. And we consider it highly detrimental to the interests of the Republican party at this time, that any elector should consent to cast his vote against a Republican candidate, on account of personal prejudice, thereby endangering not only present success, but creating dissensions in our own ranks, and sowing the seeds of future demoralization and defeat.

This expresses the right feeling. Republicans cannot afford, at this juncture, to compliment personal friends and neighbors, because they happen to be on the Democratic ticket. Every Republican should realize that upon his individual vote the success of his party ticket depends. The political importance of these local elections is greater this year than usual. Party victories always help to cement local organization, and stimulate political effort, and this year the highly important and critical situation of national politics renders it peculiarly desirable that the party which sustained the Government during the rebellion, and brought the war to a successful issue, and upon which the hopes of all patriots for a substantial and just civil restoration depend, should not exhibit even the appearance of disintegration, neglect or weakness. Let every elector who professes to be governed by Republican principles, vote the REPUBLICAN TICKET FROM TOP TO BOTTOM.

The Ward Nominations.

We have before spoken of the general excellence of the Republican Ward nominees for Councilmen and School Directors.

The First Ward brings forward the name of Reuben S. Bartles, one of our most estimable and public spirited citizens, a property holder, familiar with every material want of his constituents, and who can be relied upon to act conscientiously at all times in the discharge of his official duties. His election is a certain event. Mr. Fowler, our candidate for School Director, will be equally efficient and acceptable in that position, and will give every necessary attention to the duties.

The Second Ward Republicans present the names of W. W. Kingsland for Councilman and G. O. Moody for School Director—selections that could not be improved upon in any community. Mr. Kingsland, although not a politician, is one of our oldest and best citizens. He has a popular competitor in Mr. Stewart, and the friends of the latter confidently predict his success. But we have no doubts of the result. The Republicans have a clear majority of forty-five votes in the Second Ward, and if there is to be any "splitting," which we disbelieve, Mr. Kingsland probably will draw quite as many Democratic votes from his opponent as the latter will gain from Republicans.

Dr. Moody is a Republican of the "old school," and will make an excellent School Director. His opponent, Mr. Jacob Strauss, formerly acted with the Republicans. If he goes badly "physicked" to-morrow, he cannot but fault with the prescription. It is the regular allopathic treatment.

The Third Ward Republicans have renominated R. D. Fletcher. He is President of the Common Council, a large property holder, personally familiar with the city finances, and cannot at the present time be spared from the Board without actual damage to the city interests. Property holders should act upon this consideration. Every vote against Mr. Fletcher, while our city finances are in so complicated a condition, is a blow at the city's financial interests. The Democrats have a small majority in the ward, but we trust Mr. Fletcher will be elected, notwithstanding.

Mr. Hershberg, the candidate for School Director, is popularly known. He is always manifested an interest in public affairs, and particularly concerning the Union School. He is an honest, straightforward man, practical and energetic in whatever he undertakes, and capable of filling creditably any position in the city administration.

In the Fourth Ward, J. J. McCracken is nominated for re-election to the Council. The unanimity expressed in his nomination shows that the citizens desire his services for another term. He received three-fourths of all the ballots cast in the convention. During his past term Mr. McCracken has devoted a great deal of time to the duties of councilman, and we believe that his experience will be of great value to his constituents. As a property holder, he will advocate a reduction of taxes and retrenchment in all public expenditures.

E. C. Bishop, a member of the present Board of School Directors, is nominated for re-election. He is as good a man as can be selected for the position, and Democrats as well as Republicans know it. What Simon Strouse wants of such an office, or what such an office wants of Simon Strouse, it would be difficult to conceive.

But it is not our purpose to disparage the qualifications or the claims of Democratic candidates. We have endeavored to show that the Republican nominees are worthy the united support of their own party, if not equally of the community at large, and we hope for their triumphant election. We believe they can be safely trusted with the administration of our city affairs, and that every body concerned will be the better for it.

ROW AT PETROLEUM CENTRE—A MAN SHOT.

On Tuesday night last a row occurred at a saloon kept by Dennis O'Donnell, on Washington street, Petroleum Centre, between a party of eight or ten men who were all laboring under the influence of frequent potations of poison, or some similar beverage. During the row the proprietor of the saloon struck the counter with a loaded revolver, when it exploded, and the ball struck a man named John Malow in the forehead, but without inflicting a serious wound. Another of the participants named Jim Gilson, was most unmercifully beaten. He received a severe cut under the eye, and was in a measure rendered unconscious. Three or four others were more or less injured, and black eyes and mutilated faces were as numerous as the most beligerent of the party could reasonably wish. Jim Gilson, John Malow, and another individual named Edward McGee, were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Kincaid after he had succeeded in quelling the row, and yesterday morning they were brought before Justice Donahy, at Petroleum Centre, on the charge of rioting. As there was not sufficient evidence to hold them on this charge, about noon they were again arrested on complaint of Deputy Sheriff Kincaid, and their commitment was to have come off yesterday afternoon.

Letter from Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Friday, March 19, 1868.

The telegraph has taken the wind out of the sails of all letter-writers and reporters who are away from home. Ere this can reach you, the dispatches by telegraph will have made the facts of to-day things of the past. Yet I have thought it worth while to give you an account of a part of what I saw while at the Capitol to-day.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

At noon the hammer of Schuyler Colfax fell as he took his seat in the Speaker's Chair of the House of Representatives, and the noise and confusion died away. Prayer was offered by the chaplain, many of the members, true to their education or from force of habit, reverently standing in their places. Not more than fifty of the chairs were filled when the assistant clerk read in a rapid manner, but with great clearness, the minutes of the previous session. After a slight correction they were adopted, and the business of the day began. The Speaker reminding the members that at one o'clock they would proceed to the Senate Chamber to attend the impeachment trial. Except while some noted man who commands the attention of the House is speaking, the routine of business is far from interesting to a listener. For instance, the bill for the relief of Mrs. General Robert B. Anderson, who, after she and her heirs $15,000 or some other sum, or nothing, came up. Messrs. Cobb, of Wisconsin, Holman, of Indiana, Bingham, of Ohio, and Sefton, of our State, and one or two others, argued the bill for or against with great earnestness, but only the Speaker and perhaps a half dozen seemed to pay any attention at all. There was an almost incessant loud clapping of hands by one member or another, as he needed the services of a page, and the little claps would fly to obey their behests, threatening the masses of the room with remarkable agility. Soon the seats began to fill. Being unoccupied, and with any one to point out the notables, I can only mention those whom I had previously seen. General Butler appeared conspicuously in the importance of the position he is to fill. General Logan, looks as much in earnest as I saw him last at the head of his gallant Fifteenth Army Corps. His Indian lineage is strongly marked, his long, straight and black, complexion swarthy, high cheek bones and eyes that look right through you. General Garfield, I had not seen since meeting him at Wartrace, in October, 1863, while he was Chief of Staff to General Rosecrans. He speaks with force and energy. He is on his third term. Gen. J. H. Ketchum, is one of the military, industrial members, not given to much speaking and never saying one word more than is necessary, endowed with sound practical sense, good business habits, and having had considerable experience in legislative matters, he makes one of the most efficient members, always voting and always right. He was the gallant leader of the 150th New York regiment, and is serving his second term. The counties of Dutchess and Columbia, New York, which he represents, cannot well spare him, and we must be long continuing in his present seat. When Thaddeus Stevens entered leaning heavily on the arm of an attendant, he drew the attention of all spectators. He was escorted to a seat at the left of the Clerk, an easy chair prepared for his special use. I confess to some disappointment in his appearance. I did not recognize the man whom I had seen there twelve years ago. His face shows great infirmity and but a degree of feebleness far beyond what I had expected. He wears a dark brown full wig. All the time he sat motionless, his hands crossed, the workings of his face showed that he was suffering. When the Managers of the impeachment left the Hall he was attended to the door by the members, then, seated in a chair and wrapped in a shawl, was carried to the Senate. The crowd filling the passages and the rotunda formed into two compact lines and pressed as closely as possible to get a look at the venerable old man. Most of the comments I heard were in commendation of his services, but one unrequited chap muttered out "I would like to pull the rope to hang him."

At half past one the members of the House marched to the Senate, and for a detailed account of what followed I refer you to the Philadelphia Inquirer, of March 14th, containing by far the fullest account I have seen. Tickets for admission to the Senate Chamber were limited to one thousand, and when you take into account that a member of either branch of Congress could have but two you may imagine how utterly impossible it was to gain admission. Valued I tried all the ways I could think of, but without avail. In a personal interview with Col. Forney, Clerk of the Senate, I learned that two-thirds of all the tickets were held by ladies. "All wrong," he said, "the law provides for an open Court of impeachment, and this is by no means one."

But blame can be attached to the Senate, however, for its rules in this case. Had the Court been held in the Philadelphia Academy of Music, its three thousand seats would have been filled, and then more would have been disappointed than could have gained admission. See the Washington Chronicle of March 13th, for a statement of the rules of the Senate I have referred to. It was highly amusing to notice the clapping depicted on the countenances of those who essayed to pass, without tickets, the first line of courteous policemen who guarded the first door. The brusque and important air assumed by many was sadly changed as they were turned back disappointed. Had they, as many did, claimed to be attaches of the House or Senate, there was still a severer ordeal to pass, where check or assurance were at a great discount.

The crowd was great, but took good humoredly by their disappointment. The first evening papers out sold their editions rapidly. Everybody read and wanted more.

Visitors were the prophesies to be how soon, honest old Ben Wade would be installed in the White House.

The Court of impeachment stands adjourned to March 23d, and what length of time will be consumed in the trial no one can tell. General Butler's article as to the offenses committed by the President while "winging around the circle" may lead to the sending for witnesses from every point of the circumference and protracted matters greatly. The charges all depend on documentary evidence, except as to the testimony of Gen. Emory and a few others whose presence can be easily obtained. There is a wonderful earnestness at the Capital. The Republicans seem to think that New Hampshire's response proves that they will find hearty support and encouragement in the present line of proceeding. Republicanism bears away. The haughty and imperious manner of the southern element in Washington society received its first decided check when gallant Gaius A. Grow replied to unlearned insolence by a blow that felled the would be overreacher, and ever since the fashions and customs of society at the Capital of the nation have been improving.

TANK CASE.

The Tank Case—the Tank case of the Portland Petroleum Oil Company, thirty in number, and holding about thirty-three barrels of forty-three gallons to the car, have just been completed, and are now in operation. The tanks are from the manufactory of Mr. James H. Davis, in this city. They were made of white pine, which was purchased in Chicago. The tankers have been examined since their arrival at Portland, Me., and not a sign of leakage was found about them. Mr. H. W. Fawcett is the agent of the company in this city.
